

Confidential Print: Middle East, 1839 - 1969

"Anyone working on the Modern Middle East will find the Confidential Print: Middle East collection extraordinarily useful. This collection is an absolutely invaluable resource for both researchers and teachers."

Professor Michael Gasper, Yale University

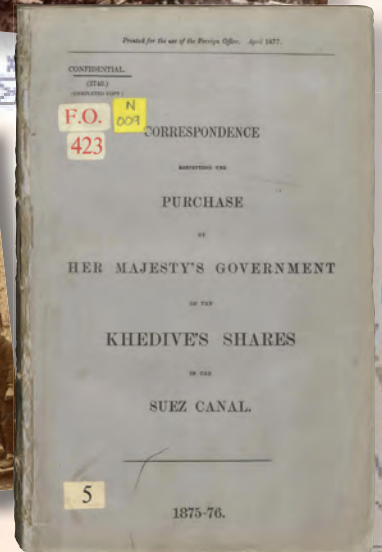

With full-text search and detailed metadata, this online collection covers complete volumes of all British Colonial Office and Foreign Office Confidential Print for the Middle East.

From the Egyptian reforms of Muhammad Ali Pasha in the nineteenth century, the Middle East Conference of 1921, the Mandates of Palestine and Mesopotamia and the Suez Crisis in 1956, to the partition of Palestine, post-Suez Western foreign policy and the Arab-Israeli conflict, Confidential Print: Middle East is a fundamental online resource for academics, students and researchers studying the modern Middle East. These historical documents inform the volatile situation in the region today.

Highlights include:

- Axis influence in Afghanistan
- The importance of the Suez Canal to British imperial policy
- The Mahdist Wars in Sudan
- Egyptian politics during the Second World War
- The ambitions of Atatürk's Turkey
- Views of Mossadeq's government in Iran after the oil nationalisations
- European diplomatic manoeuvrings during the First Balkan War.

Taking in the countries of the Arabian Peninsula, the Levant, Iraq, Turkey and many of the former Ottoman lands in Europe, Iran, Afghanistan, Egypt and Sudan, we include materials from the various committees on Mesopotamia and Palestine, on Transjordan and the military base at Aden, on Syria and the Lebanon, and on the Passfield Report of 1930 and the early phases of the Arab League after 1945.

Confidential Print: Middle East is an Archives Direct resource enabling users to benefit from searches across all projects within the Archives Direct Portal. All document images are provided in full-colour high resolution and are full-text searchable. Please see our website for more details.
